A beautiful summer day. Family gets ready for an outing, father, mother, sons and daughters and also the little one in the baby coach.

It is too far for the children to walk. Ma takes them in the "Electric" to the park, while Pa pushes the baby coach.

Oh, what a heat! Pa takes off his coat. Meeting a darkey, he engages him to push the coach. They fasten the coach on the rear end of an express wagon and now the troubles begin.

The baby coach is soon out of sight. Father meets the family minus the baby. Now for a baby hunt. They run here and there, looking for the lost darling.

They look in every baby coach, stop every nurse, question every policeman. At last they caught sight of the runaway coach and the chase begins anew.

The darling is found! Poor father gets a calling-down. The picnic is at an end. No more outing with the baby coach.
